Your New Zealand Electronic Travel Authority (NZeTA) has been issued.

This NZeTA authorises you to travel to or transit New Zealand. You must have a valid Australian Permanent Residence Visa and Resident Return Visa, in your current passport, when you travel.

When you travel to New Zealand, you must check in with the passport listed here.

Now your NZeTA has been issued, what next?

- Check that the details in this notification (including your given, middle and family names) exactly match your passport details. If they do not match, or your details change, you will not be allowed to travel to New Zealand using this NZeTA. You can use our online form to correct some details, otherwise you must request a new NZeTA.
- Your NZeTA is not a visa and does not guarantee entry into New Zealand. If you are flying to New Zealand and intend to enter, you must apply for entry permission by completing an arrival card and presenting it to an immigration officer when you arrive in New Zealand. You must also answer some questions about biosecurity and customs.

For information on what to see and do in New Zealand, visit www.newzealand.com.

See you in New Zealand.
